PRAYER (DEMENT ME NOT)

When I am very old,
I pray the irony of the
Wool and linen that walk the streets together.
Just before the Spring declares itself
Does not escape me.
I pray my annoyance at the
Scrape-whoosh-whirr of the snow plow ice salter
Persists into another slowly melting season.
And I pray I still remember mama's face vividly enough
That you look like her to me
Until my dying day.
